Preached in the Presbyterian Church Yesterday by

REV. A. T. GAPPLE

At Annual Union Thanksgiving Service—All Denominations Unite to Express Gratitude for the Blessings of the Year.

Our God is the God of all nations, and Father of all men. He dispenses blessings to all people with a divine impartiality. It is for this reason that the world-wide unfolding of the world's life is the theme of the Thanksgiving service.

Let us say, this not with that fatal vanity and self-gloryification that proved the ruin of the Hebrew nation, but with the humility and gratitude that characterized the world-wide unfolding of the world's life.

JUSTICE R. F. GIBSON

Recalls Visit of General Taylor to Bedford During the Summer of 1849.

DECEMBER 1, 1905

EDITOR GAZETTE:—Some time ago Maj. Frank Holsinger, of Rosedale, Kan., sent me a Bedford GAZETTE containing a letter from a gentleman who resided in Philadelphia, and who visited Bedford in the summer of 1849, during the time when General Taylor visited Bedford.

I was at home during that summer, on a vacation from my position as a member of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, and I remember General Taylor's visit to Bedford.

General Taylor was a very interesting man, and I remember his visit to Bedford very clearly.

COUNTY INSTITUTE

Brief Synopsis of the Strong and Interesting Program.

"ACRES OF DIAMONDS"

Five Evening Entertainments—Able List of Day Instructors—Bedford Orchestra Each Evening.

Two weeks from Monday next, the 18th inst., the teachers of the county will convene at Bedford to hold the fifty-first annual session of the Bedford County Teachers' Institute. Every effort has been put forth to present a program of surpassing merit. Only the memory of the perfect support given in former Institutes by the teachers and the public has emboldened us to engage so expensive an array of unexcelled talent.

Dr. Martin G. Dumbauld, the eminent professor of pedagogy in the University of Pennsylvania and formerly U. S. Commissioner of Education for Porto Rico, will be with us the first three days of the last week. Many of our people know Dr. Dumbauld and need not be told of his high professional attainments, his forceful personality, and his magnetic power as a speaker. On Tuesday evening he will lecture on "Americanism in Porto Rico."

Prof. F. H. Green, of the West Chester State Normal, will be with us all week. His addresses are full of overflowing with the best that may be given along the line of literature. Besides, as a rapid-fire speaker, wit, and entertainer he has rarely a superior. Prof. G. R. Albert, of the Bloomsburg State Normal, will also be with us the entire week. He is an able instructor and a recognized authority in his special department. He will talk mainly on Geography, an important subject of the school curriculum.

Supr. L. B. McGinnis, of Steelton, recently chosen president of the Pennsylvania State Teachers' Association, will be here two days. A practical up-to-date superintendent who is in immediate touch with the public schools, he will give specific instruction of direct value in the everyday work of the schoolroom.

On Thursday the sessions will be enlarged and the listeners entertained and edified by readings and recitations to be given by Miss Bertha B. Herring, the accomplished teacher of elocution in the Harrisburg high school. In P. O. T. Gibson, formerly superintendent of schools for Cambridge county, now professor of English in the Maryland State Normal, Baltimore, we shall have a musical director whose place in the front rank is freely acknowledged. He has for many years been leading Institutes with marked success in every part of Pennsylvania and in neighboring states.

We shall have five evening attractions, all first class. Evening tickets for the five numbers will be sold at the same price as for the four-number course of last year.

Hon. J. Hampton Moore, of Philadelphia, first chief of the Bureau of Manufactures in the national Department of Commerce and Labor, will lecture on Monday evening on "Commercial Expansion." Though still a young man Mr. Moore, who by the way does not make a business of lecturing, is widely known as an eloquent public speaker. He is a former editor, a successful lawyer, and an enterprising business man, whether man or woman, who has the opportunity to hear this lecture can afford to miss it.

This evening to be given on Wednesday, coming by Carmen's Italian Boys will be a novel and unique as it is sure to be pleasing. Two boys, five of them, are instrumentalists of exceptional skill and accomplishment. They are accompanied by Robert Poland, one of the best humorists on the lyceum platform.

Dr. Russell H. Conwell, the brilliant preacher, author and orator, is announced as the lecturer for Thursday evening. Comment is unnecessary. His greatest lecture, undoubtedly, is "Acres of Diamonds." As everyone knows, the diamond is not to be found in the earth, but in the heart of man. It is a story of a man who, by the use of his own mind, has made a fortune of millions of dollars.

This is a matter of importance and the columns of THE GAZETTE are open for questions and discussions. The scale multiplies to rapidly that immediate action is necessary to save orchards in many sections of the county. Farmers and fruit growers: be up and doing.

On Friday night the Comopolitan Concert Company will entertain. The company is composed of four ladies, a reader, two violinists and a harpist. The violin duets performed by the Tyler Sisters, twins, are of the highest excellence, while Miss Bina Bether, reader, is greatly given to all evening songs from the best story writers of the day including dramatic sketches and vocal and piano solos. The members of the company are all artists in their line.

The over-popular Bedford Orchestra under the leadership of S. H. Koontz, will again furnish music each evening before the lectures is introduced. Respectfully, A. J. W. WHEAT, County Superintendent.

Henry Mower. Henry Mower died last Friday at his late home in Altoona as the result of a paralytic stroke received about noon of the same day. Mr. Mower had been in feeble health for the past four or five months but his illness was not considered serious. When he was stricken he was in the midst of a business trip to Altoona. He was born in the town of Bedford, Pa., on August 18, 1878. Nine years ago he was married to Mrs. Mower at Jersey Shore and has resided in Altoona for the past fifteen years. She is survived by her husband, a son, Malcolm, her mother, one sister and five brothers, one of which is Adolphus Woyandt, of St. Clairsville, this county.

Mrs. Edward Rooney. Mrs. Emma D. Rooney, wife of Edward Rooney, passed to her reward at her home at Altoona, on Saturday, November 25, 1905. She was a daughter of Alexander, deceased, and Louisa Weyandt and was born in Bedford county on August 18, 1878. Nine years ago she was married to Mr. Rooney at Jersey Shore and has resided in Altoona for the past fifteen years. She is survived by her husband, a son, Malcolm, her mother, one sister and five brothers, one of which is Adolphus Woyandt, of St. Clairsville, this county.

THE "HAPPY BILL" MAN

Makes Another Visit to the Sunny South—Alexandria Thiving.

RICHMOND, VA., November 27, '05

EDITOR GAZETTE:—"Tis an old, old city and, like Rome of old, is built on seven hills. This city has improved very much within the past ten years. Large wholesale houses of different kinds have sprung up and they in their various lines send men all over the country, even as far as the capital of the Lone Star state. But that is not so much after all for a big city with its millions to do. There is dear old Bedford with her hills and fertile valleys, lying just outside the corporate limits, with only its four thousand souls to breathe its pure mountain air and drink its waters, each of which adds to the length of one's years. She doesn't do half enough bragging about herself, and all the good that lies within her boundaries, yet with what little is done for her, I once heard of a young man who was born and raised within her limits, but who had traveled quite a few miles, say when in St. Augustine, Fla.: "Oh, I was so homesick to see some one from home (Bedford), when one day I chanced to look into a shop window and saw Happy Bill posters. Then my homesickness did and I chanced to my breast one of these packages, thinking, 'Well, something from home.' Something or anything from home even to see Happy Bill."

As for the greatest apple tree that Bedford ever produced.

Richmond is where they have "Chit-lins" and 'tis the only place I ever saw them. 'I'll tell you personally what they are when I come north. 'Twas here that the pernicious cigarette originated, and many millions of them are made today. 'Twas the profit on these little things that enabled Mr. Ginter to build the great Jefferson hotel, the finest in the land. I never stayed there once and then I was invited to do so by a Boston gentleman who had more bottle than his salaried head. Dr. Hunter McGuire, one of the greatest surgeons of the nineteenth century, lived here. He was one of the loudest exponents of the celebrated Bedford mineral water, claiming that it prolonged his life many years. He was raised in the great Shenandoah valley of Virginia and when a mere boy frequently went with his father to Bedford Springs. Any thing that Dr. Hunter McGuire would praise or recommend was sure to win praise in Richmond. He once wrote a note setting forth the great medicinal qualities of Bedford mineral water; 'twas only five lines, but armed with this I went out and sold a couple car loads of the water to the druggists in a very few hours. When you go to Richmond you want to take the monument erected last year in the capital grounds in honor of his memory.

Some years ago I thought that Alexandria, Va., a good sized city, was here in it. The fence has been removed and business of all kinds is on a boom. The music made by the lamplighters, now as can be heard along every street. One of the greatest freight depots in the United States is being built there and hundreds of foreigners from almost every part of the globe are at work. An elegant passenger boat now runs every half hour between Washington and Alexandria. The fare is only ten cents. This was a really slow town in 1877 when Charles King started in the wholesale grocery business, for he took his son Frank, then twelve years old, into the business with him, not so much to strengthen the financial condition of the firm but to use Frank for a jumper, and many a hat of groceries that were carried out by the said Frank, who still lives to tell the tale, but who is now called to be a cashman. The firm of Charles King and Son today does a business of over half a million a year; they employ fifty clerks and salesmen and use ten big double teams and drive six wagons instead of Frank and the basket. They use about fifteen car loads of flour and as much hog meat of different kinds each month. They also sell Happy Bill and Fort Bedford pennants as well as the great Senator grass bags. These gentlemen are affable. If you ever get stranded while in their midst go to them for money and I'll promise that if you can show a letter I send "Dear Did" you can get the cash for any piece of paper that you may present.

Alexandria is about half way between Washington and Mt. Vernon. It is for me to tell anything about Mt. Vernon, as that is a matter that no man who has not been there can tell. I was there when the late President was there and when one stands on the hill in front of Washington's home and looks over the Potomac with the beautiful valleys and hills he thanks his Father in Heaven for permitting him to thus fast his eyes. Once not many moons ago when the writer was there he saw a beautiful lady standing alone with folded arms gazing over the beautiful landscape spread out before her. A little later I asked her what she had been meditating about. She said the scene was so beautiful that she became enebated and could not move. 'Twas the first time she had ever been there and I thought she would talk me to death going back to the city, extolling a thousand and one things I had not noticed.

I was delighted to read Mr. Holdershausen's letter in THE GAZETTE. I hope the change in climate may do him much good so that he can come back well enough to make a full harvest in the harvest field. M. P. BROCKMAN.

John A. Wertz.

John A. Wertz died at his home on West Pitt street Tuesday morning at the advanced age of 78 years, four months and 15 days. Deceased moved to Bedford about 15 years ago from Bedford township.

Mr. Wertz was a veteran of the civil war and a highly respected citizen. He is survived by his widow and the following children: Mrs. J. W. Stinner, of Roanoke Springs; O. R. Wertz, of Greensburg; C. A. Wertz, of Mountain City, Ind.; Mrs. J. W. Tudor, of Gettysburg; David Wertz, of Baker's Summit; and Misses Julia and Minnie at home. The funeral service was conducted yesterday afternoon by his pastor, Rev. H. Townsend, of the Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Wertz was a consistent member. Interment was made in the Bedford cemetery.

A Puzzle for the Congregation.
Perhaps one of the best stories told concerning the inconceivable number of parish clerics is the following, which is taken from Dean Platon's reminiscences, entitled, "Phases of My Life." A certain clergyman served two churches, and the following notices were given out one Sunday by the parish clerics in second vestibule: "I beg to give notice that there will be no service in this church on Sunday next, as our vicar will be preaching to all clerics (alternately) in this church. The second notice I have to give is that there will be no service in this church Sunday next, as our vicar will be preaching to all clerics in this church. And the third and last notice I have to give is that there will be a meeting of the parishioners tomorrow evening to take into serious consideration what color we shall whitewash the national schools."

Best Watch Value In Town

An inspection of this superb 17 jeweled movement timepiece, offered at only $15, will convince you that no happy combination of circumstances ever before placed such a prize within your grasp.

The cases are gold filled and positively guaranteed for twenty years. The accuracy of the watch as a timekeeper, its beauty and real intrinsic worth as a personal possession put it in the front rank of desirable acquisitions.

Bear in mind that our reputation as good jewelers and honest men stands back of our statements. We feel that we cannot emphasize the extremely high quality of this watch too strongly. We positively guarantee that it is one of the best values ever offered in Bedford and urge every watch-needy person to step in today and examine it carefully.

It costs nothing to look and ask questions.

The One Shoe

A woman's shoe always should fit closely under and about the instep, to prevent the foot from slipping forward and crowding the toes.

It should hold the heel firmly in place and support the arch.

It should give the ball of the foot and the toes, plenty of room for free action, but the instep should be grasped as if by a gloved hand.

Every shoe should do this. There is one shoe that does it. That is the "Queen Quality."

It is a new sensation in comfort.
